

BROWNIES IN A SOUTHOLD PARADE

We don't have a date for these two photos but recognize a few Brownies who would now be in their 40's. As the photos below show, the view is a little different in 2023. The house was raised and Feather Hill now occupies the land. The current Michaelangelo's is seen to the west. This building has been home to many varied businesses, from Sayre's garage to Chinese restaurants...the ever-changing businesses in Southold village.

THE WHARF AT FOUNDERS LANDING

Many readers associate Founder's Landing in Southold with the "Wharf House" on the Peconic Bay, a great building owned by the Southold Park District that has been the site for many weddings, private parties and community events. The origin of the name for this building is from the wharf seen above. A hurricane in the 1950's damaged the wharf beyond repair. Additional photos follow on pages 14 and 15. (from PBS archives)

THE SOUTHOLD WHARF (NOW FOUNDERS LANDING)

OYSTERPONDS HISTORICAL SOCIETY

1555 Village Lane, Orient, NY 11957 • office@ohsny.org • 631-323-2480

Fridays and Sundays 2-5pm and Saturdays 11am-5pm. Admission is free for OHS members and $10 for non-member adults, which grants same-day access to all OHS buildings & exhibitions.

Sunday, July 2, The 14th Annual HERITAGE DAY, 12 noon to 4pm. Many years ago, local schoolmaster, tavern keeper, store owner, and Oysterponds diarist, Augustus Griffin (1767-1866), began a tradition of the reading of the Declaration of Independence on July 4th. That grew into Heritage Day, an annual celebration where the Oysterponds community (East Marion and Orient) comes together to celebrate. The program will start with a parade down Orient's Village Lane led by the Grand Marshal; followed by a welcome and invocation at the Old Point Schoolhouse; the recitation of the Pledge of Allegiance; "God Bless America" sung by Franklin Mastrangelo; and the reading of the Declaration of Independence by Oysterponds stalwarts. The event will continue in nearby Poquatuck Park, with hot dogs, treats, kids' games, and music by North Fork Favorites, the Mudfats.

Village House (1555 Village Lane) is period-furnished with noteworthy pieces from the OHS collection and shown as a late 19th-century boarding house, demonstrating a significant chapter in its history. This year's Village House exhibitions are: "Oysterponds at Leisure" (Photography) – Culled from our extensive collection, these photographs depict people in East Marion and Orient as they rest, play, and enjoy a respite from the daily grind of work. There are scenes on the water (boating and ice skating), on the beach, relaxing on porches (at hotels and at home), playing (grownups and children), riding in carriages and cars, bicycling, sightseeing, and celebrating special events.

"In Pursuit of Whales" – Concentrates on documents pertaining to whaling during its heyday in the second quarter of the 19th century. Numerous whaling vessels sailed out of the East End of LI and we have a trove of individual items (letters, contracts, legal documents etc.) relating to dozens different whaling vessels which sailed the seven seas.

"William Steeple Davis Block Prints" – Focuses on the print-making of Orient multimedia luminary Davis (1884-1961) – specifically on his wood-block and linoleum-block prints. He began making block prints in 1924 and sent them to exhibitions around the country. They are some of his best work in any medium, and are being shown together with some of the actual wood and linoleum blocks that he cut to create the prints.

"What is It?" – Our collections are full of extraordinary objects that seem strange to 21st century eyes but, in fact, were common household objects, ordinary implements or useful tools from a century or two ago. Today, it's a challenge to determine how they were used or for what purpose, but – don't worry – we'll supply copious hints to help visitors as they try to deduce what each mysterious item is. Co-curated by Sarah Olmstead.

"Happy Birthday: Orient Yacht Club at 90" – The OYC occupies a central place in the Oysterponds universe. Over the past nine decades OYC has transformed hundreds of sailing novices and landlubbers into intrepid seafarers. Photos and documents capture the compelling history and reflect the Club's importance to generations.

"Melita Hofmann: Author, Illustrator, Naturalist" – Ms. Hofmann (1907-1976), curator of OHS from its founding in 1944 until 1963, was responsible for most of the early displays and exhibitions at OHS. She studied both at the Parsons School of Design and NYU, as well as in Paris and Munich. She was the author-illustrator of The Big Book of Birds, Pearls of Ferrara and A Trip to the Pond.
