29 TOLL OF HURRICANE DEAD HERE

23 Bodies Recovered, Six are Still Missing

Death by the hurricane, most grim of reapers, took a heavy toll in Westhampton Beach when 29 people lost their lives, of which number six are still missing. From early that fateful Wednesday night until yesterday morning the waters one by one disclosed more victims of Nature's destructive fury when wind and sea are aroused. The first body to be recovered, that of Mrs. James L. Pinks, was taken to the Country Club, which became the make-shift morgue. There flashlights and candles gave an even more eerie atmosphere to the already gruesome scene as distraught relatives came in to identify the bodies. Through that night and the succeeding days the bruised and battered bodies were brought in to await some one to claim them before the last and rites could be performed.

MAYOR BISHOP RAISES WORKERS

Mayor Ernest H. Bishop told the Hampton Chronicle reporter that he is deeply grateful for the way all agencies have co-operated to expedite the relief work in the stricken areas of this village.

The body found most recently was that of Robert Melvin, the colored bartender at the Surf and Dune Club. Mr. Melvin was 25 years old and made his residence at 530 Third Street, West Palm Beach, Fla. His remains were found floating in the Yacht Basin. On Wednesday three other bodies had been recovered, those of Miss Agnes Clelland, aged 65, maid of the MacFarlanes, and Thomas Fay, Jr., and Charles Lucas, Jr., of Quogue. Hopes are gone that any of those recovered as missing will turn up alive. It is feared that further bodies will be discovered underneath the wreckage and may be in unrecognizable condition. Further fears have been expressed that some of the victims of the catastrophe have been taken far out to sea and may never be found. In spite of the awful number drowned there were many who would have been taken had not the valiance of rescuers and the calm actions on the part of the marooned cheated death. Many see the stories of thrilling

Hurricane Damage Here Two and a Half Million

VILLAGE BOARD ACTS PROMPTLY

The Village Board held a special emergency meeting Friday afternoon and passed a number of resolutions for the protection of the devastated areas in the village. The board also passed resolutions to appropriate emergency funds and requests for Federal aid, etc. Following are the minutes of the meeting:

RESOLUTION
That the following streets leading into the Village of Westhampton Beach be blocked and all people turned back:
Mill Road at Depot Road, Lilac Road at Montauk Highway, Oak Street at Montauk Highway, Sunset Avenue at Montauk Highway, Beach Road at Montauk Highway, Aspatuck Lane at Montauk Highway (also known as Aspatuck Brook Road), Main Street at Quateck Bridge, Seaford Lane at Main Street, Beach Road at Main Street, Library Avenue at Mr. Street, Potomac Lane and roads so of Potomac Lane at Potomac Neck, Pwocreat Avenue at Little Quack Neck, South Road at Quack Lane, Quack

The center of the tropical hurricane which pounded the northeastern seaboard late on Wednesday, Sept. 21, struck the vulnerable Westhampton Beach resort section with all its fury about 3:00 P. M. and two hours later departed, leaving in its wake a terrible toll of dead and a sickening array of twisted wreckage, hammered by sea and wind, causing a total of property damage in this village conservatively estimated at two and a half million dollars. Forty per cent of the assessed valuation of the Village of Westhampton Beach is wiped out and about one-third of the assessed valuation of the school district will have to come off the tax roll.

NOTICE TO BOATERS
Boaters are advised to avoid the beach area and to head steadily toward the bay. Spontaneous fires are reported in the dunes.

This story, written by Merlon E. Wiggin, was printed in the September 2003 issue of the Peconic Bay Shopper, for the 65th Anniversary of the Hurricane of '38. After twenty more years have passed, we thought another look at these photos would be appreciated.

HURRICANE OF '38

9/22/38 — Long Island Sound Town Beach, Southold. Jack's Shack on the beach. Photo complements of Paul Hunter.

Please note, this is an exact reprint as written in 2003, hence the opening line saying "65th Anniversary".

September 21st marks the 65th Anniversary for one of the most devastating hurricanes ever to hit eastern Long Island. This was before the hurricanes were given names, and is often referred to as "The Hurricane of '38" or locally "The Long Island Express." It was also preceding the present day sophisticated weather forecasting and communication systems, and therefore struck the North Fork of Long Island in the early afternoon without warning. It also arrived at high tide and carried with it sustained winds of over 120 miles per hour.

One of the reasons the hurricane is so well remembered by the author is that it occurred on my birthday. It was evening by the time the hurricane hit Maine and I can still remember coming into the house after helping my grandfather feed the cows after the evening milking, and being surprised that my grandmother made me a birthday cake. Supper was eaten by the light of kerosene lamps (this was before electricity reached that area) and we all shared my birthday cake while listening to the roar of the wind and the crashing of the trees outside.

There are many stories that can be told by the area residents about that day and how they survived. A couple of the more scary ones are about the lighthouse keepers of Long Beach Bar and the steamship Catskill.

When I was first planning the rebuilding of Long Beach Light I had many conversations with Bill Allen, who was at the lighthouse with his grandfather, when the hurricane struck. As one can imagine the winds and waves were fierce and they feared for their lives, at one point not expecting to make it. The wind and seas broke some of the windows, knocked off the top of the chimney, and flooded the lighthouse cisterns with salt water. It also swept away the lighthouse's boats, isolating them both until help came from passing fishermen a couple of days after the storm.

Another extremely scary episode and close call occurred aboard the steamship Catskill. Mrs. Edward King, as told by her daughter, Fran Demerest, had driven their car aboard the ferry at Orient Point en route to visit family in Newport, Rhode Island. The Catskill, operated by the New London Ferry's Management, Inc., was under the command of Captain Clarence Sherman of Shelter Island. The steamship had difficulty leaving its dock at Orient Point shortly after noon because of the wind and sea conditions. That everyone survived the height of the hurricane is certainly a tribute to the skill of Captain Sherman. He was able to anchor the steamship for a while in the western part of Fisher's Island Sound. As the eye of the hurricane passed over the steamer was turned around and dragged its anchor and later started taking on water. One can only imagine the frightening experience of the eight passengers standing in water hour after hour wondering if they were going to survive. After over ten hours en route the Catskill finally made it into New London Harbor about midnight, and were told by the Coast Guard that there was no place in New London to land, but to go to the coal dock in Groton. The next day the passengers of the Catskill discovered that they were the only large vessel afloat in New London Harbor.

Greenport and Orient were especially heavily damaged as one can see by the following photographs. Especially damaged was the buildings in Greenport Basin & Construction Company, now Greenport Yacht & Shipbuilding, and Claudio's. Over 600 trees were reported down in Greenport, the roof of the theater was torn off, and many boats sunk including the 50 ft. yacht, Clever Girl and the houseboat Filene. The menhaden steamer Ocean View was lost in Long Island Sound along with eight members of the crew, with only the Captain surviving.

The 1938 Long Island Express Hurricane

was one of the deadliest tropical cyclones to strike Long Island and New England.

At 2pm on September 21, 1938, hurricane-force gusts were occurring on Long Island's South Shore. The majority of the storm damage was from storm surge and wind. Damage was estimated at $308 million in the 1938 economy. It is estimated that if an identical hurricane struck now it would cost well over $40 billion in damage due to the changes in population and infrastructure.

Eastern Long Island experienced the worst. The Dune Road area was obliterated, resulting in 29 deaths (see Westhampton Beach newspaper on our cover). There were 21 other deaths on the east end. The storm surge temporarily turned Montauk into an island as it flooded across the South Fork at Napeague and obliterated the tracks of the Long Island Rail Road.

Eastern Long Island's estimated storm tide was fifteen feet. All shorelines were very vulnerable to the high winds and flooding so anyone near the shores was directly in harm's way.

Ten new inlets were created on LI's East End. Due to the surge rearranging the sand, the Cedar Island Lighthouse, originally built on a three-acre island, was now connected to the mainland of East Hampton (Cedar Point).

ARE YOU PREPARED FOR A HURRICANE?

Here's a list of recommended preparations:

- An emergency food and water supply
- An emergency medicine supply
- Emergency power sources such as flashlights (and extra batteries!)
- Personal items including prescriptions
- A fire extinguisher
- Medical documents and personal ID

GARDEN WALK & TALK THROUGH HISTORY FRIDAY SEPTEMBER 22

Two local non-profits have joined to offer a one-of-a-kind experience at the Landcraft Garden, 4342 Grand Ave, Mattituck. Southold Historical Museum and Landcraft Garden Foundation have planned this event for up to 100 guests from 4:30-6:30pm. The tours of the beautiful gardens, historic talk, and refreshments combine to create an exclusive evening that both garden and history lovers will not want to miss.

Established in 1992 by Dennis Schraeder and Bill Smith, the Landcraft Garden is a natural oasis consisting of four acres of diverse plantings and 1840s farmhouse. Guests will explore the gardens at their leisure with garden guides situated to answer questions and offer their knowledge.

Gathering on the center lawn, guests will be treated to a talk by Co-Founder Bill Smith, wherein he shares the history of the farmhouse and garden, since their acquisition. The process of the land's transformation is sure to impress. Additionally, Southold Historical Museum's Executive Director will share the centuries-long history of the land. Guests will be offered wine, cheese, and sparkling water in this gorgeous setting as well.

Tickets are $75pp and proceeds will benefit both organizations. Tickets must be purchase in advanced using Eventbrite. A link to purchase is on both organizations' websites: www.southoldhistorical.org/upcoming or <https://www.landcraftgardenfoundation.org/special-events/>
